OBITUARY.

"Leaves have been blowing hard, but all times are thine, O Death!"

At six o'clock Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, 1908, the spirit of Norma Mildred, daughter of W. W. and Pauline Rogers, passed from earth and loved ones to the faraway home of the soul. She was taken ill with typhoid fever August 3 and all that human aid and skill could do was of little avail. Her intense suffering. She had a professional nurse constantly at her bedside. "Thy will be done, O Death!" she said, when the end came. Her death was a surprise to all who loved her, for we must remember, she was but a child. She will not be missed.

Mrs. Rogers and family moved to Flemingsburg last spring. She was, as here, Norma had endeared herself to all of her acquaintances. She was born Aug. 17, 1893. She was a most intelligent girl, a close student, having attended the Flemingsburg country school at Olympia, was an overwhelming success. On Friday all the necessary groundwork was done, and on Saturday a splendid series of sermons followed. The audiences, which were composed of the best people of the two counties, and numbered over 2,000, were the grandest ever assembled at Olympia.

At 12 o'clock dinner was served and was enjoyed by everybody present, especially Messrs. Botts, Kercheval, Evans, Chandler, etc.

OLYMPIA MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Christian churches of Bath and Menifee counties, held at Olympia, was an overwhelming success. On Friday all the necessary groundwork was done, and on Saturday a splendid series of sermons followed. The audiences, which were composed of the best people of the two counties, and numbered over 2,000, were the grandest ever assembled at Olympia.

At 12 o'clock dinner was served and was enjoyed by everybody present, especially Messrs. Botts, Kercheval, Evans, Chandler, etc.

COURT DAY.—There was a big crowd in town Monday and the merchants report a fair trade. Funds were off about $1,000 last court day.

Among the stock sales are: Robt. Catlett bought six 800-lb. yearling steers of Jim Tom Coyne at $32 per head.

Latham & Clark bought fifteen fat cows at $25 per head.

T. S. Shroat sold to W. Hut- sell a saddle horse for $155 and a mule to W. W. Razor for $150.

Dr. C. W. Conner bought 25 mountain ewes at $4.75 per head.

ONE CASE AT A TIME.—W. J. Rice, who is under $2,000 bond on the charge of embezzling funds of the Bank of Morehead, was wanted by the authorities of Jackson, Mississippi, on a similar charge. Judge A. W. Young, at Mt. Sterling, Thursday, decided that Rice could not be taken there until the case against him in the Bowan Circuit Court was disposed of.

BAD RUNAWAY.—One day last week Nathan Holland was hauling rock with Geo. Kerr's team on the Mt. Sterling turnpike near Flat Creek street. The horses scared at an automobile and ran away. A buggy at the store was upset and Holland thrown out, breaking his left ankle and bruising him badly.

STORE BURGLARIZED.

Everett Barnes' general store at the Ore Mines was entered the night of Sept. 7 by one or more burglars. When the fact was discovered next morning no one was permitted on the premises until Chas. Wilson, of Mt. Sterling, arrived with his bloodhound. The dog quickly took up a trail and followed it to a certain house south of the store and then to Preston, where the trail was lost about the railroad station. It is supposed that the burglar visited the store and took a package and a small sum from the cash drawer, a revolver, a pair of Mrs. Barnes' shoes and about a pound of Bologna sausage. The guilty one is pretty certain to be caught yet.

NEW SIDEWALKS.—The City Council has been wrestling with the proposed ordinance requiring sidewalks to be built, but has come to no conclusion yet. However, a number of residents of the east end are preparing to put down saved freestone walks, especially on the east side of Sud-duth street, between Main and High.

ANOTHER DEMOCRATIC PRIMA-ry.—The Democratic county chairman of the 21st Judicial district met at Mt. Sterling last week and called a primary election for Tuesday, Nov. 10, 1908, to nominate candidates for Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney. The Bath county Democratic primary to nominate county officers will be held the Saturday before.

THE DROUTH.—The drouth continues. Drinking and stock water get scarcer all the time and grass is burning up. The corn is cut very short. The Weather Bureau promises rain toward the end of the week.
